"I was troubled with Constipation ever since I can remember; as a result, was subject to distressing Headaches and pain in my left side. I would go for two or three days without any movement of the bowels. I chanced to read about 'Fruit-a-tives', in one of our local papers, and began their use about four months ago. Since then, I have been free from Headaches, my bowels have been regular, and from the use of several boxes of 'Fruit-a-tives', I feel that the great benefit I have derived justifies me in pronouncing them a remedy of true and exceptional merit."

Noah Brooks, High street, Barton, says: "I think Doan's Kidney Pills are very good. I used them several years ago when my kidneys were in a bad fix. Mornings my back and kidneys ached awfully and during the day when I stooped, the pains in my back were unbearable. My kidneys were very weak and the secretions were painful in passage. I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills and got a few boxes at the E. W. Barron Co., and they fixed me up in a short time. I am glad to recommend the old reliable Doan's Kidney Pills."

The Bible in the Home

Sunday School Lesson for May 1,
1921

Scripture, Deut. 6:4-9; Prov. 3:13-18; Luke 2:40-52

By Rev. E. F. Davison, Derby Vt.

Within this ample volume lies The mystery of mysteries. Happiest they of human race To whom their God has given grace To read, to fear, to hope, to pray, To lift the latch and force the way. And better had they never been born That read to doubt, or read to scorn

The missing link in the training of children today is the Bible in the home. It has been cast out of the public school in many places. We have it still in the pulpit, but in many Sunday schools it has been supplanted by "lesson leaves" and so-called "lesson helps," and in vast numbers of homes it is a sealed book. While in a good many homes it is to be seen on the parlor table, gilt-edged, turkey-bound, double clasped, a piece of ornamental furniture merely, too ponderous to use and too rarely touched to disturb the dust on the covers, it is of no earthly use to the inhabitants of the home.

THE BIBLE TO BE USED

The Bible in the home should be in constant use, the Bible open, the Bible read, the Bible every day, the Bible year in and year out, the Bible in health and in sickness, the Bible in prosperity as well as in adversity, the Bible for the parents, the Bible for the children, the Bible, for the visitor, a hope anchor for the soul, a bow of promise against every dark sky, an inexhaustible source of strength, a fresh and fragrant wisdom and unfailing guide and inspiration of the soul.

THE BIBLE SHARPENS WITS

The author of Deuteronomy did not leave it a matter of individual choice concerning the use of the Bible. He declared that it must be made the text book for family training of children. He declares that parents must teach "these words" diligently to their children. Matthew Henry says that the original verb means to whet or sharpen. "As in whetting a knife, it is turned first on this side, then on that. Be careful and exact in teaching thy children; and aim, as by whetting, to sharpen them, and put an edge on them." No listless, hit or miss, reading of the Scriptures will do that. The Bible is a sword, it ought to have a razor edge. The Bible is an arrow, it ought to have a sharp point. The author of Deuteronomy knew that the character of the child is formed for good or bad before it reaches the "teen age." The statistics of crime show that criminals in most cases start upon their careers before they are twelve years old. And the vast majority of those who come into the church upon profession of faith do so before they are 20 years old.

Secular education is right and the public school system is one of the corner stones of the republic, which, please God, shall never be removed. But if religious education does not supercede, and modify, and balance, and control secular education, the mental equipment of the individual is lopsided and shallow.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION NECESSARY

As Dr. Guthrie puts it. A man may know all about the rocks, and his heart may remain as hard as granite; he may know all about the winds, and be the sport of passions as turbulent and fierce as they; he may know all about the stars, and his fate be as the meteor's that blazes for a little while, and is then lost quenched in eternal night; he may know all about the sea, and his soul resemble its troubled waters, which cannot rest, but throw up mire and dirt; he may know how to rule the spirit of the elements, and not know how to rule his own; he may know all, in short, man's genius has discovered or his skill invented, but, if he does not know God, and Jesus Christ, what will all his knowledge avail? On the other hand a great preacher once said, and said it advisedly: If I could send my boy four years to the University or give him four years of systematic wholesome Bible study, I believe he would come out of the four years Bible study better fitted to meet life's problem than from the University without the Bible. Of course the ideal education would be the University and the Bible study also, but in too many instances a college course turns out infidels instead of great believers. And here is where the Bible in the home gets its importance. It takes time by the forelock. It preempts the soil of the soul. It forecloses the case for all the future. It garrisons the fortress in advance. It provides the weapons of defence long before they are needed. In time of peace, it prepares for war. It puts the sword of the Spirit into the soul's armory. It places the helmet of salvation over the intellect to protect the mind against the suggestions and doubts of the seminary. And it provides the shield of faith whereby the unperiled one may quench all the fiery darts of the devil.

THE BIBLE, FASCINATING

The Bible is the children's picture book, and no book that was ever written is so full of fascinating stories. How poorly furnished is that child's mind who does not know Joseph, and Moses, and Esther and Ruth and David and Jonah and Daniel. What a vacancy in the mental furnishings of that child who cannot repeat the 23rd Psalm, and the Ten Commandments, and the 1st chapter of John, and the Beatitudes, and Paul's immortal chapter of love, and the incomparable chapter on the resurrection. What a loss in soul stuff is experienced when the individual is unfamiliar with the sermon on the Mount, and the majesty of the book of Job, and the fatherly wisdom of the book of Proverbs and the apocalyptic vision of unutterable glory, which John saw at Patmos. The secular school will not provide that education, the Sunday school is not equal to the task of securing that information. The home is the divinely ordained place for the inculcation of this knowledge, the most important of all education. THE BIBLE A STEADYING FORCE That parent makes a vast mistake who needs to it that the child is studious in the public school, and neglects to inspire him with a love for the book. Men and women and children do sometimes break through all restraint, and run off into wild prodigal ways; but it will not be an easy thing nor will it be a common thing to become recreant to virtue and sink down into rioting and crime if the home in which one has been brought up, is saturated with the spirit of the Bible. Give the book the place it ought to occupy in the home. Enthroned it in the place of power. Let not the daily newspaper nor the popular magazine nor the "best seller" of the standard author come between the child and the C. H. Spurgeon put it this way in a sermon of "The Talking Book"; Oh, for the Berean spirit back again, to search the Scriptures whether these things be so I would like to see a huge pile of all the books, good and bad that were ever written, prayer books, and sermons, and hymn-books, and all, smoking like Sodom of old, if the reading of these books keeps you away from the reading of the Bible; for a ton weight of human literature is not worth an ounce of Scripture; one single drop of the essential tincture of the word of God is better than a sea full of our commentaries and sermonisings, and the like. The word, the simple, the fallible word of God, we must live upon it if we are to become strong against error, and tenacious of truth.

VERMONT NOTES

D. P. Locklin, instructor in the Rutland high school, who has been accepted, has just been accepted, has accepted a Fellowship in Economics in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences at Harvard University. His home is in Richmond and he was graduated from Middlebury in 1920.

Franklin county maple sugar producers are finding it impossible to market their commodity at more than 60 to 75 cents a gallon in barrel lots. The Western National Bank of St. Albans is offering financial assistance to the farmers in carrying their syrup until a suitable market can be found.

Richmond was visited early on the morning of the 21st, who broke into the drug store of E. W. Freeman and the clothing store of A. B. Rugg, taking from both places goods valued at more than $500. The robbers attempted to gain entrance to the post-office, located next to the Ruggs-Leary's drugstore and the Central Vermont railway station were also visited but nothing was missed.

John E. Weeks, commissioner of state institutions, has been given authority by the board of control to secure plans for the construction of a service building at the home for feeble-minded in Brandon, for which $200,000 was appropriated. He was also given authority to complete dormitory C, the work upon which was held up last fall for lack of funds. Temporarily the properties of the state at Castleton and Johnson have been placed in his supervision.

The building committee of the State Board of Charities and Probation met last week with Secretary W. H. Jeffrey to discuss the matter of location, style of building and estimates of construction of the shelter home authorized by the last general assembly. The board has propositions from six cities and towns which desire the home to be located in their midst. The appropriation is $15,000. In order to put the entire amount to advantage the site would probably have to be donated by the town securing the location.

The 1919 production of potatoes in Vermont was worth $5,010,252, from 24,182 acres, according to federal statistics just issued. The total yield of potatoes was 2,277,387 bushels. Other principal vegetables produce for sale were as follows:

Governor Hartness on Saturday received a medal at exercises held at the city of Philadelphia for notable service in the field of engineering. The medal is presented from a trust fund created about a century ago and placed in the hands of the city of Philadelphia. Governor Hartness gets the honor because of the invention of the flat turret lathe and other inventions. Edwin R. Fellows, also of Springfield, received a similar medal 12 years ago. A few other persons, besides Governor Hartness, will receive the medals Saturday.

D. S. Taylor, of Swanton, and Gray R. Erskine of Roxbury, were instantly killed Saturday at the new marble quarry being operated by the Vermont Marble Co., about one-half mile above Stockbridge Common near Bethel. The two men were in the engine house and some five rods away were five other men. An explosion occurred in the engine house blowing the two men to pieces, and destroying the building. A piece of boiler, weighing about a ton was blown at a distance of several rods. The men outside the building were uninjured. The cause of the accident is not known. It might have been due to dynamite or the boiler may have exploded.
